

MIKE MOSS
Supply Chain &
Analytics Director

As our Supply Chain & Analytics Director, Mike leads the commercial and operational performance of our supply chain, working closely with all our suppliers and distribution partners.

Alongside this role, Mike is working with teams across our parent company and largest client, Compass UK & Ireland, to improve how we use data and analytics to drive better insight and decision-making.

Mike started his career at a startup in various roles across research, consulting and software development. He subsequently moved industry to work within Tesco's supply chain, leading several data and technology-based transformation programmes in the UK and abroad. During the pandemic, he worked as the Trade and Operations Director for Tesco's General Merchandise business and more recently as the Supply Chain Development Director for Tesco UK & Group.

Outside of work, Mike is a keen climber and skier. With a young family, this has taken something of a back seat recently and these days you are more likely to find him on flatter ground running along the local canal pushing his son in the pram.
